

New flood modelling is underway

Video transcript

Narrator: Living in Melbourne means being prepared for four seasons in one day! But are you prepared for what the weather can bring?

Flooding has always been a part of living in Melbourne, and it can have a big impact on our way of life.

But is a flood likely in your area? What kind of flood? And what can you do about it?

Here at Melbourne Water, we use flood modelling to answer these questions, by finding out which areas are most likely to flood, how deep the water can get, and considering ways to understand the impact of flooding.

We share flood information to raise awareness of flooding that can then help you prepare your home and support your community.

So, how much do you know about the chance of flooding in your area?

[on-screen text: How much do you know about the chance of flooding in your area?]

[button appears with text: A lot]

Narrator: A lot.

[button appears with text: A little]

Narrator: A little.

[button appears with text: Nothing at all]

Narrator: Nothing at all.

Option: A lot

Narrator: Taking flood information seriously is a good thing, especially if you've experienced flooding before.

Whether you're preparing your home, buying or selling a property, or moving somewhere new, understanding flood information in your area can help you take the right steps at the right time. You can start with our resources on flooding on this page and then continue to our next video looking at the impacts of flooding.

Option: A little

Narrator: Knowing a little bit of flood information is helpful. That's why we've created these videos: so you can better understand and prepare for flooding.

Whether you're preparing your home, buying or selling a property, or moving somewhere new, understanding flood information in your area can help you take the right steps at the right time. You can start with our resources on flooding on this page and then continue to our next video looking at the impacts of flooding.

Option: Nothing at all

Narrator: Some basic knowledge, from a flood map or other information on our website can be helpful and is an easy first step.

Whether you're preparing your home, buying or selling a property, or moving somewhere new, understanding flood information in your area can help you take the right steps at the right time. You can start with our resources on flooding on this page and then continue to our next video looking at the impacts of flooding.

[End transcript]